A bit about us:

Revoluton Arts is a Luton-based arts organisation. We work with artists and communities – across a range of art forms and disciplines – to produce creative work that promotes positive futures for people and place. We provide support, resource, and mentoring to artists and emerging creative practitioners. We facilitate pathways for people to engage with creativity, as professional practitioners, participants, and as audience members.

We believe the spirit of Luton encapsulates activism, warmth, and generosity.
The spirit of our work is captured in our name – Revoluton.

We are an independent arts organisation, initially established in 2015 as Luton's Creative People and Places (CPP) project funded by Arts Council England (ACE). We are based at Marsh House in Leagrave. In 2020, Revoluton Arts was incorporated as a Community Interest Company (CIC) and became the lead organisation for Luton's CPP project, initiating a business planning process for organisational growth.

What We Do

Our work is deeply rooted in Luton and our creative programme is co-created with communities. We design and produce creative and cultural programmes that are resonant and relevant to local audiences. We are committed to communities taking the lead. We work collaboratively to co-create events and programmes that inspire and support engagement with creativity in all its forms – from Kashmiri textile design in schools through to large scale outdoor arts events.

Our Vision, Mission and Values

Our vision is for communities to connect through creativity, locally and globally, uniting to define their positive futures.

Our mission is to unite communities and creatives as the collective catalyst for change. We locate Luton in the world. We embrace difference and celebrate distinctiveness. We do this by connecting the people of Luton with standout creative practitioners – locally and beyond – to create cultural activities that bring positive change for people and place.

Our values are:

- Agency (affirming the voice, choice, and power of marginalised communities to bring positive change)
- Belonging (celebrating place, and creating a sense of acceptance and freedom)
- Connection (uniting people and forming partnerships towards a common purpose)
- Creativity (nurturing talent, promoting everyday creativity, and producing creative work made in Luton)
- Opportunity (providing and promoting access to arts and creativity for leisure, learning, and livelihood)
